

HYLAN SEES VICTORY IN BROOKLYN BUSES

Hails Proposal by Transit
Commissioner as Vindication of His Stand.

NEWSPAPERS ASSAILED

Declares Some Cannot Be Fair and Deliberately
Lie About Him.

SAYS HE STOPPED STEAL

Mayor in Statement Enumerates Advantages to City in His 'Obstruction.'

Tentative proposals by engineers of the Transit Commission to scrap certain obsolete surface car lines in Brooklyn brought yesterday Mayor Hylan a statement in which he hails the recommendation of buses on some routes as a vindication of his city bus plan. He attacks what he calls the traction controlled newspapers for their opposition to his self-styled fight for a 5 cent fare and his hard, uphill battle for the people.

The Mayor's statement says in part: "There has emanated from the State Transit Commission's engineer a belated suggestion that some surface lines in Brooklyn be 'scrapped' and that there be a partial substitution of buses. This proposal has met with the ostensible approval of those newspapers conspicuous in their opposition to me.

"The New York World, for example, writes leading editorials on 'Hylan and Obstructionism' and 'Face of Transit Progress.' The workings of the World's editorial mind are beyond comprehension. Understanding the 'Heathen Chinee' is simple compared with it.

"For several years I vigorously urged the 'scrapping' of obsolete surface lines in this city and the substitution of up-to-date and commodious buses in their place.

Mayor Seen Big Change.

"The New York World and similarly influenced newspapers derided my proposals and condemned them as utterly indefensible and stupid. Now, when similar proposals are made through the State Transit Commission, after I have been advocating them for three years, the newspapers that condemn my proposals extend unrestricted indorsement to the same suggestion made in a meager form by the State Transit Commission, which form is insufficient for the transportation needs of the city.

"The commission's proposal, however, is only to nourish with buses the anemic and decrepit surface lines, for the benefit of the private operators, at the expense of the public.

"The oscillations and gyrations of the editorial minds of the traction press are not so dizzy they make the editorial writers. They are designed to mislead the public, but they will be barren of result, because the public cannot be deceived by editorials from 'inspired' or talented sources.

"The New York Tribune exhibits editorial paroxysm over the belated proposal of the Transit Commission's engineer, saying:

"It is condemnation of those twenty-six lines will leave Mr. Hylan without one of his most effective and oftentimes employed arguments against the Transit Commission."

"The Tribune chooses to ignore the vital difference between my plan of bus operation, which conserves the financial interest of the public, and the proposal of the State Transit Commission, which serves the financial interest of the companies that exploit the public.

"From this city's bus plan, however, will be carried out whether the State Transit Commission indorses it or not. Several months ago the Commissioner of Plant and Structures presented to the Board of Estimate a plan of bus operation, which the Board of Estimate approved the routes designated by the Commission, and also approved the expenditure of $25,000,000 for the purchase of new buses and the installation of these new bus lines.

Bill Now in Legislature.

"A bill enabling the city to buy and operate buses has been introduced for the third time in the Legislature, and as soon as this bill becomes a law the new bus routes will be put into operation.

"Evidently the State Transit Commission sees that it cannot forestall our bus program, so it is getting on the 'band wagon.' We accept the support for the far as the owning and operation of buses by the city are concerned.

"When these traction influenced newspapers rail against me as an 'obstructionist' they do so knowing that my 'obstruction' has always been in the public interest and against the interests which they favored.

"My 'obstruction' has prevented an increased fare. My 'obstruction' has prevented the unlimited use of obsolete surface lines on the city taxpayers at extravagant prices. My 'obstruction' has been to prevent up-State politicians from depriving this city, from usurping such power. My 'obstruction' has been against a statute which forced a 'straitjacket' plan on transit on the people of this city without regard to sound economic or practicality or to the certain continuance of a five cent fare.

"In the same editorial the New York World furnishes a striking example of sales and reckless statement. It stated that:

"Mr. Hylan is the only Mayor since Reconstruction who has contributed nothing toward the extension, the improvement or the amelioration of New York transportation."

"The Board of Estimate at my instance has appropriated during the last four years for rapid transit purposes about $20,000,000. And this during a period when the war operated as an impeding force, a fact which the World knew, or should have known, when it wrote the above quoted false statement.

"During the last several days the traction influenced newspapers tried dishonestly to link me in headlines with the traction interests in my opposition to proposed legislation which purports to enlarge the powers of the commission."

"On the whole the attitude of the traction controlled newspapers still shows that they cannot be trusted when it comes to a question between the traction interests and the people."

ICE CREAM CONES POISON NINE CHILDREN AND WOMAN

Ptomaines Blamed by Physician After All Become Ill
Immediately After Eating—Three Little Ones,
Worst Sufferers, Are Sent to Hospital.

Heien McLaughlin, aged 11, of 123 Bolton avenue, Brooklyn, talked her father out of fifty cones yesterday morning, and then with her sister Rita, and her brother, John, she went to the store of Joseph Venero at 597 Ninety-second street and bought eleven ice cream cones. The children took the cones to the home of James Jessup, a chauffeur for the Street Cleaning Department, at 821 Ninety-second street.

Resides Jessup and his wife the McLaughlin children found at the chauffeur's house the Jessups' four children, James, Jr., 8; Michael, 3; Peter, 5; and John, 14 months, and also the two sons of Peter Jessup of 623 Ninety-second street, Joseph, 11, and George, 7. But Helen McLaughlin had an ice cream cone for all, and each of the eleven persons ate one.

Almost immediately after they had eaten the ice cream the children began to become ill, and presently Mrs. Jessup was ill also. Jessup did what he could, but the condition of some of them became so alarming that he sent a call to the Norwician Hospital. An ambulance surgeon said that Mrs. Jessup and the nine children were suffering from ptomaine poisoning. He treated all, but took to the hospital in an ambulance James, Michael and John Jessup for further treatment. It was said there last night that they would recover.

The hospital authorities notified the Health Department, and an inspector went to Venero's store for samples of the ice cream. He ordered Venero not to sell any more of the cones until the Health Department had made an analysis of the ice cream and the material of which the cones were made.

POLICEMAN SLUGGED SAYS SON IS VICTIM AND ROBBED OF $35 OF U. S. ARMY PLOT

Attacked by Three Men When He Went Into Hallway to Stop Fight.

Thomas Ryan of 411 West 146th street, a probationary patrolman, was black-jacked early yesterday by three men in a hallway at 159 West 129th street. After the men had knocked him down they robbed him of $35. Ryan was able to go home after he had been treated by an ambulance surgeon for a scalp wound.

Ryan, in plain clothes, was on his way home after a tour of duty. He heard noises as he passed the 129th street house. Entering the hallway he found three men fighting with a fourth. When he interfered the three turned upon him. Ryan managed to blow a police whistle before he was hit. Patrolman Viets, who was on duty at the time, heard it, as did Patrolmen Collins and Robinson.

Patrolmen Viets saw three men run from the hallway, and a little later Ryan stumbled out and fell. Patrolmen Collins and Robinson, coming from the other direction, arrested Thomas Crawford of 198 West Tenth street, Edward Clark of 44 Kenwick street and John Gallagher of 73 Perry street. Yesterday they were arraigned before Magistrate Cobb in the Washington Heights Court and held without bail for examination tomorrow morning. They were charged with robbery and felonious assault.

Harry Shepherd of 167 St. Nicholas avenue and Samuel Jaffee of 2555 Fifth avenue, charged with the theft of copper ingots worth $50,000, were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Nolan in the Essex Market Court. They were held without bail for examination tomorrow morning. The ingots are alleged to have been stolen from the Baltimore Copper Smelting and Refining Company of 123 Fourth avenue.

WOMAN ARRESTED HERE IN BIG BANK ROBBERY

Others Expected to Be Taken in Niagara Falls Case.

The arrest Saturday night of Martha Fuller, age 55, who gave an her home 527 West 146th street, which is the address of a public school, was said yesterday by the Brooklyn Express in connection with the $75,000 holdup and robbery of a Niagara Falls trust company last December. Her arrest was asked for by R. T. Brogman, special agent of the American Railway Express Company, 49 Broadway, who for three weeks has been conducting an investigation here.

The woman is alleged to have had several American Railway Express Company checks said to have been a part of the loot taken from the Niagara Falls bank. The bandits who entered the bank shot four persons before they escaped with $125,000 in cash and $62,500 in securities.

The Fuller woman was held without bail by Magistrate Max Levine in Jefferson Market court for further examination to-day.

O'BRIEN FINDS PHONE RATES STILL TOO HIGH

Says P. S. C. Should Have Made Cut 15 P. C. More.

John P. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel, yesterday issued a statement referring to the order promulgated late Friday by the Public Service Commission reducing the telephone rates in New York city by 5 per cent. He said the Commission used as a basis for its findings and order arguments that had been advanced by the city authorities during last year.

The rates, Mr. O'Brien points out, will still be 15 per cent more than the rates to be with the reduction in effect. He says that the Commission should have reduced them to the old level for the reason that the increase was given in order to assist the city in the payment of the debt incurred by the city in the operation of the telephone system.

TRANSIT UNITY PLANS DUE IN EARLY SUMMER

Board Starts To-day on Final Group of Hearings.

Hearings on the plan for the consolidation of all the traction lines in the city will be resumed before the Transit Commission at 2 o'clock this afternoon. One of the matters scheduled for discussion is the valuation of transit properties recently made public, although there is a hint that a postponement will be asked for on the ground that the companies' experts have not had opportunity to examine and analyze the figures.

JUSTICE HOTCHKISS SINKING.

Justice Henry D. Hotchkiss of the Supreme Court, who is ill of pneumonia in his home in 213 West Seventy-fifth street, was no better last night. At 9 o'clock his physician, Dr. A. R. Stern, said the Justice's condition was grave and his vitality low. A cable was sent to the Hotchkiss home yesterday stating that Mrs. Hotchkiss and her daughter, who have been in France, would start for the United States at once.

Mother of Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson Sends Plea to Harding.

Mrs. A. W. Wheeler-Nicholson, who says she is fighting "old fogeyism, inefficiency and Prussianism" in the War Department, sent a telegram last night to President Harding protesting against the reassignment of her son, Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, to Camp Dix, N. J. Major Wheeler-Nicholson was accidentally shot recently at Camp Dix and has since been in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington.

Mrs. Wheeler-Nicholson states in her telegram that the order for her son's return to Camp Dix is "a part of the conspiracy of persecution designed to drive him from the army, break his health and force him to resign or to silence him by even more drastic means as a witness against the illegal use and abuse of their power by senior officers of the army."

The young officer's mother, who has been prominent for several years for her attacks upon the War Department and certain senior officers of the army, said that President Harding made a thorough investigation of conditions which permit "the hounding of young and useful officers out of the service."

Mrs. Wheeler-Nicholson, who is commissioned in cavalry, to be sent to an infantry post. The Major is a graduate of West Point and served in France, Germany and Russia during the war.

Both the mother, staying in this city at the Grand Hotel, and the son, in an interview in Washington, said that there was no reason for the reassignment of the Major to Camp Dix for the purpose of bringing him to court-martial. He said he feared charges would be preferred against him for violation of army regulations in making a direct, formal complaint to President Harding of "Prussianism" in the army system. He recently wrote a letter, outside of military channels, to the President, which is strictly against regulations.

The mother, an energetic woman, said last night that for many years her son has been persecuted by the War Department although he has been highly commended for efficiency by officers under whom he has served. She charged the War Department with seeking his dismissal from the service in an effort to preserve the old system, which she termed antiquated and bound to be discarded by the President.

Mrs. Wheeler-Nicholson is supported, she says, by many junior officers of the service, by the American Legion, the service men's publication, the Stars and Stripes, and the American People, and all other individuals and organizations that have at heart the best interests of the army.

She said that, failing to gain any redress from the President, she will make charges against certain general officers and members of the War Department.

Sometime ago Major Wheeler-Nicholson was placed in Class B, which meant probable dismissal from the army on grounds of inefficiency. He subsequently was returned to Class A, or reinstated in good standing, by order of the President.

CHelsea DANCE HALL OPPONENTS ARE UNITED

Will Ask Residents to Attend
Public Hearing.

The churches and civic organizations which have entered a protest against the opening of a dance hall at Eighth avenue and Twenty-fifth street, to be known as the Chelsea Dancehall, held a meeting last night in the Roman Catholic Church at St. Columba at 351 West Twenty-fifth street. It was this church that started the movement against the dance hall on the ground that it would be a demoralizing element in the Chelsea district and would depreciate the value of property owned by the church.

The meeting was presided over by William E. Murphy, a local speaker, and included the Rev. Thomas A. Thornton, pastor of the church; Anthony P. Burke, William H. Kavanaugh and Assemblyman Thomas F. Burchell. It was decided to ask the residents of the district to attend in a body the public hearing to be held by the Commissioner of Licenses.

DRY LAW FARCICAL, SAYS MRS. ASQUITH

Prohibition Change Came Too
Fast to United States From Her Observation.

RETURNS FROM BIG TRIP

Bonus Is Pauperizing; Men
Need Love, Not Money.
She Contends.

Margot Asquith came back to New York last night, and although she had been traveling since 4 o'clock in the morning she consented to see a group of newspaper men at the Hotel Ambassador before retiring. She returned with some very definite ideas. One is that prohibition doesn't work; that American trains are "simply terrible"; that the best looking woman in Chicago is Countess Minotti; and that one of the most remarkable men in the world is Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada.

She was shocked at the lack of interest in exercise men both here and in Canada in comparison to the recognition they received in England. "The Speedway Hospital in Chicago is the finest hospital I have ever seen," she said. "I walked through miles of oaks, it seemed, and I was the only visitor there."

"The bonus? No. That seems to be a political affair, doesn't it? What the men want is the personal touch, a little more love and sympathy, and money wouldn't give them that. Everywhere people talked to me about the bonus and it doesn't seem to me to be the thing at all. It would only humiliate the men and pauperize them."

Dry Change Came Too Fast.

"I found prohibition so abominably administered that I have come to think some less drastic change should have been taken place. You do everything so violently over here, you know. Lights, music, movies (Mrs. Asquith's hands darted out in the air as she said this), prohibition has set the fashion for drinking among young men and maidens and I understand it is quite common to find young girls drunk at dances. I have been going to English society for a great many years—I would hate to say how long—and I have never yet seen a drunken maiden."

Mrs. Asquith was more than usually perturbed over the report that she had been snubbed in Montreal by Lord and Lady Byng. She explained that she had received "a charming letter from Lady Byng and denied vigorously that Mrs. Wheeler-Nicholson charged further that the Governor-General and his wife, in Toronto she met the most enthusiastic greeting of any of the cities."

"Which was the point, you must understand, because Toronto is a Tory town. We had to lock the green room door, and then when I came out after waiting for half an hour they stormed the motor. It was like an English election."

No Heckling in Canada.

"Were you heckled in any of your speeches?" "No. I wish I had been. It would have made it much more interesting."

"What do you think of Lady Rhonda taking her place in the House of Lords?" "I haven't read the English papers. Is there much excitement over it? I still have a lot of London Times to look over. I don't know Lady Rhonda, but dare say she'll be rather useful, but she won't go there very much, I'll wager."

"Tell me, are there any Shaw plays in town?" He was awfully clever, don't you think, but he doesn't quite get it. Let's hear of things, does he? I knew him when he was very poor—when he didn't even have any evening clothes. I told him once when we were lunching together that his plays were too long. "My dear lady," he said, "that is the only way I can empty the theater." Which was rather clever, wasn't it?"

Mrs. Asquith has been to Toronto, Rochester, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Ottawa and Montreal. She will lecture in Montreal to-night, and some time before she sails will visit the next week or so she will lecture on "The Impressions of America," gleaned in her trip West.

$1,000,000 TO REPAIR ASTORIA LINE BLUNDER

Community Councils Explain
Appeal to Mayor Hylan.

The Community Councils of the City of New York, through Jabez E. Dunningham, executive secretary, yesterday issued a statement in explanation of its opposition to the appropriation by the Board of Estimate of funds for the Transit Commission in advance of determination of a definite plan for the operation of the Astoria-Corona lines under the dual subway contracts.

The complaint of the organization begins with the completion of the lines in 1917, when it was the understanding that they were to be used by both the Interborough and the B. R. T. Through an engineering blunder the platforms were constructed so close together as to prevent their use by the B. R. T. cars, thus establishing a monopoly for the Interborough. The council says that it will cost at least $1,000,000 to repair the mistake.

On February 22 last, the council wrote Gov. Miller urging a legislative investigation. Failing to obtain satisfaction from either Gov. Miller or the Transit Commission, Secretary Dunningham announced the matter had been laid before Mayor Hylan.

SLAIN GIRL IDENTIFIED; HER HUSBAND SOUGHT

Parents See Victim of Murder
Near Rockefeller's.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Messina of 32 First street went to Tarrytown yesterday and identified the body of the girl found Friday in a blind street not far from the John D. Rockefeller estate as that of their daughter, Mrs. Marie Venna, 17, who had been missing for three weeks.

The police were looking last night for Carlos Venna, the girl's husband. He has not been seen since last Saturday night when Mr. and Mrs. Messina identified a photograph of the murder victim and a belt that had been found around her waist.

Mrs. Venna, her parents said, was only thirteen years old when she was married to Carlos Venna. In the four years of her married life, most of which was spent in Boston, she had disappeared several times, and on one occasion was committed to a correctional institution by request of her husband and parents. She and her husband were living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Messina when she disappeared the last time. Her husband is quoted by the police as having said at that time that he would not institute a search for her, as he had done on previous occasions.

A Treasury Department representative, at the Information Bureau, will assist our customers in making out Income Tax returns.

The Lord Chesterfield Room in Belmaison makes interesting use of GLAZED CHINTZ

In this room in BELMAISON glazed chintz, of white ground with brilliant red oleander blooms and long, spear-like emerald green leaves, curtains and valances the windows, curtains and valances the canopied four-poster mahogany bed, covers with slip-covers two great deep arm-chairs drawn up before the fireplace and makes a charming shade for the lamp.

Gay flutings of matching red satin ribbon further accent red, completing a color-scheme that is daring but delightful in a room with pale green walls, mahogany furniture and a moss green carpet.

BELMAISON will provide a scheme for the use of glazed chintz in your house, should your spring fancy turn in this direction.

Whoever Saw a Woman

that looked ugly if properly dressed?

She may not, in her own mirror, look pleasing to herself, but that is because she cannot see with her own eyes what others see in her.

To be fitly dressed is the whole thing.

It is true, however, that many women do not realize the need of taking the time to study how to thoroughly represent themselves properly, or seek the assistance of skilled architects of color, shape, characteristics and fitness.

This means a good deal to some who hastily put on what seems pleasing on another person.
